About Me

Studying software engineering at ICT University, I'm fascinated by technologies and like solving complex problems. Bringing my creative visions to life through my designs and implementing your projects as well as your goals to fruition through my assistance in development is my Path way.

I am particularly interested in the development of web and mobile applications, as I believe that these platforms play a crucial role in our daily lives and have the potential to make a significant impact on society. I am always seeking new challenges and opportunities to grow as a software engineer, and I am eager to put my skills to the test in a real-world setting.

Educational experience
